Histories of bus services (both Government & private) in the metropolitan area of Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, with route numbers in the geographically-based Sydney Region (sometimes called three-digit) route number system, initiated when Government bus routes were renumbered during the period 1938-44 and private bus routes similarly renumbered during the period 1981-2004

Entries in this section comprise Industrial routes and "Tramless Sunday" replacement services.

Note re Government industrial routes

The availability of information about industrial bus routes run by the Government is inconsistent. The main source is Greg Travers' 1982 book, City to Suburb ... a fifty year journey, and subsequent updates. Little other detail of such routes is known to exist during World War II and in the immediate post-war period. However during the 1960s, 1970s and up to 1987, timetables for industrial routes used by the general public in the south-eastern suburbs were regularly published in booklets entitled Guide to Industrial Services. Some other industrial route timetables were included with related normal route timetables. But there are no timetables available for other routes, especially those used by employees of the various bus, railway and tramway workshops. So the extent of information listed here varies widely from route to route.

Locations of Transport Workshops

Chullora Bus Workshops: Roberts Rd, corner of Norfolk Rd [in current Greenacre].

Elcar (Electric Car) Railway Workshops, Chullora: Off Dasea St.

Leichhardt Bus Workshops: Site of current Leichhardt Bus Depot & Sydney Bus Museum, Derbyshire St.

Randwick Tram Workshops: Site of current Randwick Bus Depot & adjacent properties along King St.

Note re “Tramless Sunday” replacement routes

Similarly to industrial routes, the availability of information about “Tramless Sunday” replacement routes run by the Government is confined to City to Suburb ... a fifty year journey, and its predecessor. The Government Bus in New South Wales, by VJ Hayes. Little detail of such routes other than termini & route numbers is known to exist.

Assistance with additional information about either of these groups of routes would be appreciated.
